<h2> </h2>

During the one year degree you will have the opportunity to study both core and specialised modules in environmental policy. Teaching is focused on areas and skills within environmental policy-making, such as:

Environmental Economics
Climate Policy
Energy Transitions
Urban Risk and Resilience
GIS
Policy Design and Analysis
European Environmental Policy and Politics
Research Methods Training.

You also have the opportunity to choose specialist option modules from a broad, interdisciplinary range.

Students also undertake an integrated group project (Professional Tools for Sustainable Development) to provide practice-based insights into environmental policy-making. Finally, you will have the opportunity to further enhance your specialist interests during the completion of a thesis in the third semester.
